Customer Engagement & Support announces continued expansion of Laptop Loaner Program

DoIT to provide over 700 students with laptops every semester

Stony Brook, NY: During Summer 2024, Customer Engagement & Support completed a purchase of an additional set of laptops for the Laptop Loaner Program, bringing the total number of available laptops for Stony Brook University students to over 700. The latest set of laptops feature a more compact design to fit the lifestyles of more students, and feature the latest generation of Intel Core Ultra processors.

The Laptop Loaner Program is available at the Melville Library SINC Site (Room S1460) on a first-come first-serve basis. Laptop loans are available for up to a semester, with short term options available for students dealing with issues with their own devices.

About Customer Engagement & Support: Customer Engagement & Support (CES) serves as the user facing team within the Division of Information Technology. CES seeks to provide all members of our university with the tools, services, and support needed to meet and exceed their instructional, research and administration expectations. More information about the Division of Information Technology is available at it.stonybrook.edu.
